Sharon Lewis is President of Questionam Leadership Development, an internationally recognized Leadership Development organization. She is a Speaker, Trainer, Facilitator and Coach, and is accredited through the International Coaches Federation, The Institute for Health and Human Potential, The Center for Right Relationship, Access Consciousness, Team Coaching International and The Leadership Circle. Sharon is also a valued leadership coach on the faculty of the Institute for Health and Human Potential. She served as a partner coach on the corporate coaching initiative that won the prestigious 2011 ICF International Prism award — a remarkable achievement in the world of leadership coaching. This award was created to honour, celebrate, and learn from organizations who have embraced coaching as an integral part of their leadership strategy.

Working with an international clientele of executives, managers, and teams; Sharon trains and coaches to develop the leadership skills of her clients, and to facilitate the creation of sustainable, high-performance teams world-wide. Her leadership, team development, and coaching skills developed over the past ten years coaching executives, enhance her work helping single parents step into leading their one parent families.

Sharon draws on a diverse business background comprised of Construction Management, Information Technology, and Team and Leadership Development. She embodies an unshakable belief that sustainable high performance is grounded on three pillars: a compelling unifying vision, the quest to align what you do with who you are becoming, and a caring, supportive and challenging environment in which to work.

Sharon provides unique perspectives and a powerful blend of hard and soft skills to her clients. She balances theory, introspection and real world practicality to help her clients create outstanding results. In her leisure time, Sharon is an avid skier, and passionately involved in the local Habitat for Humanity's Women Build Projects.
